Up to $2,000 in Fines for Distracted Driving

One in four deaths on BC roads is due to distracted driving. As of last month, the fine for a single distracted driving violation ticket is $368, plus 4 penalty points on a driver's record. These points also result in a further $175 ICBC Driver Penalty Point premium, for a total of $543 for a first infraction.

Drivers with two or more distracted driving convictions in a three-year period are charged a Driver Risk Premium (DRP), separate from any insurance premiums. This amount increases for each additional conviction. Essentially, a driver caught twice in a 3-year period will receive up to $2,000 in fines as well as points.
