Protect Yourself from COVID-19 Fraud

COVID-19 scams are spreading like the virus. Since governments have launched pandemic support programs like CERB and the BC Recovery Benefit, these programs have become the subjects of a number of scams. Fraudsters want to profit from consumers' fears, uncertainties, and misinformation and are posing as businesses, charities and governments.

Here are some tips to protect yourself:

- Don't share any personal information with unconfirmed sources online, on the phone, or in person.
- Never respond or click on suspicious links and attachments.
- Watch out for companies claiming to sell COVID-19 tests and vaccines.

If you think you may be a victim of a scam, contact your local RCMP and report it online to the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre.

The Pitt Meadows Community Police Office is open during regular operating hours with COVID-19 restrictions in place. Please call 604-465-2402 prior to your visit.
